A relaxation result in the framework of structured deformations

Margarida Baía, Instituto Superior Técnico

Structured deformations provide a model to non-classical deformations of continua suitable for the description of deformations of materials whose kinematics requires analysis at both the macroscopic and microscopic levels. In this work we derive the integral representation of an energy associated with the theory of structured deformations as a first step to obtain models for thin structures via dimensional reduction.